

Writing a Bio

The adoption information form for cats and kittens has a section for a bio, a detailed description of the cat's personality. Please describe your foster cat with as many details about their personality as possible.

How would you introduce your cat to a potential adopter?

- What is your ideal home for them
- Are they lap pets, love cuddles, etc.
- Toys they love to play with the most, places they like to hang (window seat) etc.
- Funny/goofy things they do
- Are they shy at first but warm up
- Anything else that you can think of about your cat/s

Here are some examples:

Sweet little Pepper is such a gentle soul. She loves to greet you with little kitty meows and chirps. Her favorite things include being petted, head scratches, playing with toys, and belly rubs. She likes to be around her people and at times can be your little shadow. She is very curious and likes to watch what you're doing. She likes sleeping with her foster parents and loves to snuggle in the middle. Like humans, kitties have all kinds of unique personalities. Miss Pepper is a bit on the shy side at first. But, once you earn her trust, she will want your love all the time. She is better in a home with older children who won't chase or grab her. A big plus would also be a home with another kitty as she is very playful and would benefit from a trusty companion. Pepper is also good with dogs as her foster home includes two; a 40lb and 80lb. She really is a sweetie!

Beautiful Mercury is ready to go! We responded to a plea on Facebook, a kind neighbor had noticed Mercury outside with an injured front leg. From what we understand, she was thrown out of her home during Covid. She's an old girl, estimated to be nearly 10 years old so she must have had a very difficult time outside on her own. Her injury has healed but left some permanent damage. Mercury has a disability with her right front ankle/paw and needs to wear a soft brace on her ankle to protect it from wear. She accepts wearing it very well. Mercury is a very low key, easy going cat looking for a good home and a little TLC. She is low maintenance, affectionate when petted, and enjoys hanging out with you on the couch watching a good movie, or even a bad one! Mercury has had it pretty rough, and it shows in her face. She deserves to live in a quiet home being a sweet companion to someone. She tolerates other cats but would do best as the only spoiled cat in the household.
